JAPANTOWNS BRACE FOR ECONOMIC IMPACT OF VIRUS
San Jose J-Town business closes
PG. 3
Digital Files
Start by creating a surnames folder for genealogy, which contains one folder for each family, one folder for each individual, one folder for each spouse, and another folder for each child. Each spouse folder must contain a subfolder for each parent, and a subfolder for each child. Each child folder must contain a subfolder for each sibling. This system helps you keep your research organized and makes it easy to find information.

Filing System
My filing system is based on a system by which you can find documents in a way that makes sense to you. My preference is to have a master label for each category of documents, and to label each file with that category. I use a combination of categories, such as blank template, family or Friend's family, such as Ichimaru, 1920, Santa Maria CA, record label might be "Ichimaru, 1920, Santa Maria CA, and save to your computer, of the digital sites, you probably Shuttered and Adapting Businesses — San Francisco’s Japanese businesses such as the downtown Paseo (C) have banded together to use their doors and windows to share their story with the world. Many of these businesses are also offering takeout or delivery services. For more information, visit the website of the Japanese Cultural and Community Center of Northern California in San Francisco for details.

Benjamin’s ACC Care Center reports single COVID-19 case

In TAKASHI NAKAYAMA

Benjamin’s ACC Care Center, located at 1500 Sutter Street in San Francisco and in the Bayview, has confirmed a single COVID-19 case of a staff member since the last update. The staff member is currently in isolation and has been recorded in an update. The organization has announced that they are continuing to provide care to ACC and facilities like ours during the pandemic.

In the midst of the global pandemic, the Japanese Cultural and Community Center of Northern California in San Francisco has launched a new program to help people stay healthy during this time. The program includes regular check-ins with patients and family members, as well as online support from dietitians and other healthcare professionals.

Residents, Staff Coping Well With Pandemic

The Japanese Cultural and Community Center of Northern California has reported that its residents and staff are coping well with the pandemic. Staff members are working together to get creative solutions to help the residents and families of the center.

In Shuttered and Adapting Businesses — San Francisco’s Japanese businesses such as the downtown Paseo (C) have banded together to use their doors and windows to share their story with the world. Many of these businesses are also offering takeout or delivery services.

In TAKASHI NAKAYAMA

Sakata’s ACC Care Center reports single COVID-19 case

In TAKASHI NAKAYAMA

Sakata’s ACC Care Center, located at 1500 Sutter Street in San Francisco and in the Bayview, has confirmed a single COVID-19 case of a staff member since the last update. The staff member is currently in isolation and has been recorded in an update. The organization has announced that they are continuing to provide care to ACC and facilities like ours during the pandemic.

In the midst of the global pandemic, the Japanese Cultural and Community Center of Northern California in San Francisco has launched a new program to help people stay healthy during this time. The program includes regular check-ins with patients and family members, as well as online support from dietitians and other healthcare professionals.

Residents, Staff Coping Well With Pandemic

The Japanese Cultural and Community Center of Northern California has reported that its residents and staff are coping well with the pandemic. Staff members are working together to get creative solutions to help the residents and families of the center.

In Shuttered and Adapting Businesses — San Francisco’s Japanese businesses such as the downtown Paseo (C) have banded together to use their doors and windows to share their story with the world. Many of these businesses are also offering takeout or delivery services.

In TAKASHI NAKAYAMA

Sakata’s ACC Care Center reports single COVID-19 case

In TAKASHI NAKAYAMA

Sakata’s ACC Care Center, located at 1500 Sutter Street in San Francisco and in the Bayview, has confirmed a single COVID-19 case of a staff member since the last update. The staff member is currently in isolation and has been recorded in an update. The organization has announced that they are continuing to provide care to ACC and facilities like ours during the pandemic.

In the midst of the global pandemic, the Japanese Cultural and Community Center of Northern California in San Francisco has launched a new program to help people stay healthy during this time. The program includes regular check-ins with patients and family members, as well as online support from dietitians and other healthcare professionals.

Residents, Staff Coping Well With Pandemic

The Japanese Cultural and Community Center of Northern California has reported that its residents and staff are coping well with the pandemic. Staff members are working together to get creative solutions to help the residents and families of the center.

In Shuttered and Adapting Businesses — San Francisco’s Japanese businesses such as the downtown Paseo (C) have banded together to use their doors and windows to share their story with the world. Many of these businesses are also offering takeout or delivery services.

In TAKASHI NAKAYAMA

Sakata’s ACC Care Center reports single COVID-19 case

In TAKASHI NAKAYAMA

Sakata’s ACC Care Center, located at 1500 Sutter Street in San Francisco and in the Bayview, has confirmed a single COVID-19 case of a staff member since the last update. The staff member is currently in isolation and has been recorded in an update. The organization has announced that they are continuing to provide care to ACC and facilities like ours during the pandemic.

In the midst of the global pandemic, the Japanese Cultural and Community Center of Northern California in San Francisco has launched a new program to help people stay healthy during this time. The program includes regular check-ins with patients and family members, as well as online support from dietitians and other healthcare professionals.

Residents, Staff Coping Well With Pandemic

The Japanese Cultural and Community Center of Northern California has reported that its residents and staff are coping well with the pandemic. Staff members are working together to get creative solutions to help the residents and families of the center.

In Shuttered and Adapting Businesses — San Francisco’s Japanese businesses such as the downtown Paseo (C) have banded together to use their doors and windows to share their story with the world. Many of these businesses are also offering takeout or delivery services.

In TAKASHI NAKAYAMA

Sakata’s ACC Care Center reports single COVID-19 case

In TAKASHI NAKAYAMA

Sakata’s ACC Care Center, located at 1500 Sutter Street in San Francisco and in the Bayview, has confirmed a single COVID-19 case of a staff member since the last update. The staff member is currently in isolation and has been recorded in an update. The organization has announced that they are continuing to provide care to ACC and facilities like ours during the pandemic.

In the midst of the global pandemic, the Japanese Cultural and Community Center of Northern California in San Francisco has launched a new program to help people stay healthy during this time. The program includes regular check-ins with patients and family members, as well as online support from dietitians and other healthcare professionals.

Residents, Staff Coping Well With Pandemic

The Japanese Cultural and Community Center of Northern California has reported that its residents and staff are coping well with the pandemic. Staff members are working together to get creative solutions to help the residents and families of the center.

In Shuttered and Adapting Businesses — San Francisco’s Japanese businesses such as the downtown Paseo (C) have banded together to use their doors and windows to share their story with the world. Many of these businesses are also offering takeout or delivery services.

In TAKASHI NAKAYAMA

Sakata’s ACC Care Center reports single COVID-19 case

In TAKASHI NAKAYAMA

Sakata’s ACC Care Center, located at 1500 Sutter Street in San Francisco and in the Bayview, has confirmed a single COVID-19 case of a staff member since the last update. The staff member is currently in isolation and has been recorded in an update. The organization has announced that they are continuing to provide care to ACC and facilities like ours during the pandemic.

In the midst of the global pandemic, the Japanese Cultural and Community Center of Northern California in San Francisco has launched a new program to help people stay healthy during this time. The program includes regular check-ins with patients and family members, as well as online support from dietitians and other healthcare professionals.

Residents, Staff Coping Well With Pandemic

The Japanese Cultural and Community Center of Northern California has reported that its residents and staff are coping well with the pandemic. Staff members are working together to get creative solutions to help the residents and families of the center.

In Shuttered and Adapting Businesses — San Francisco’s Japanese businesses such as the downtown Paseo (C) have banded together to use their doors and windows to share their story with the world. Many of these businesses are also offering takeout or delivery services.
Burglaries in S.F.’s J-Town during shelter-in-place

By TOMO HIRAI

The S.F. Police Department reported a pair of burglaries in the area of Japantown since March 17 shelter-in-place order went into effect. The burglaries took place within the limits of the Nicki Blue Weekly’s reporting area.

The first incident occurred April 4 after midnight, according to a police report. A resident of an apartment complex on 12th and Sutter streets reported a break-in and items scattered around the interior of the apartment.

The second occurred April 16, according to a police report. A woman on 12th and Buchanan streets reported a break-in where cash and a watch were stolen.

In both cases, the suspects left from a rear window.

Merchants R legitimatized

Although San Francisco Chronicle reporters John Deringer, a U.S. Army veteran and author of "The Tule Lake Stockade: A Jap­anese American Internment Camp of World War II," said he believed it was an isolated event in Japan, but Nagasaki started the fortune cookie in the tea garden, which is a "Japanese" practice that has become an American tradition.

The tea garden is unique, but not neces­sarily un-American. The garden, founded in 1880, offers a variety of Japanese and American cuisine to its customers.

Throughout the day, employees are scheduled to greet customers and provide information about the tea garden, which is why tea is served for free every time a person turns a corner.

Dawkins said the tea garden does fol­low shelter-in-place orders and other pro­grams to abide by mandates from the San Francisco Department of Public Health. While there is a possibility that the event organizers would likely delay any events to accommodate those who purchased tickets to support the pagoda restoration project, the tickets will be refunded.

The Pagoda Garden is open to the public in the garden, following the Mint’s open hours, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the tea garden while he served as its "pro­gram developer and communications offi­cer." The deal with the city was a dollar-for-dollar match with under­writing the restoration of its famous pagoda through the Pagoda Garden Foundation (PGF). The project started in 2015. The PGF continuation was funded, in honor of the tea garden’s 125th anniversary, with a gift from the 47th District Chamber of Commerce and its president,迴戈昭一 (Goyo Hideyoshi). Harai also noted that the tea garden is unique, but not necessarily un-American. The garden was founded in 1880, and its donors and supporters have funded the garden for years.

Bonifacio said that in the spring of 1915, the tea garden was the one place where Japanese and American workers could come together and socialize. The garden was a place where Japanese and American workers could come together and socialize.

In accordance with the 30th anniver­sary of Tule Lake National Historic Site (NHS), the garden serves as a resource for pub­lic education and understanding of the NHS. The garden also serves as a reminder of the contributions of Japanese Americans and to honor the memory of the people who have served in the NHS. The garden is open to the public year-round.

In the fall of 2019, the garden solic­ited construction funds through a cam­paign led by Oda and other local leaders of Los Angeles designated the former Tuna Canyon Detention Facility Monumen­tum Site (U.S. Army National Guard) and the contribution to the National Park Service. The National Park Service has awarded an additional $3.1 million in grants to preserve and interpret the site. The site is an important resource for understanding the experiences of Japanese Americans and to honor the memory of the people who have served in the NHS. The garden is open to the public year-round.

The garden is open to the public year-round, and it serves as a reminder of the contributions of Japanese Americans and to honor the memory of the people who have served in the NHS. The garden is open to the public year-round.
Alan Nishio, who is the editor of the Bay Area Newpaper Scoop, was an educator, and now he is writing about his life story. He talks about how his family moved from Hiroshima, Japan to the United States after World War II, and how he grew up in the Little Tokyo neighborhood in Los Angeles, California. He mentions the challenges he faced growing up and how he overcame them. He also talks about his time at UCLA, where he received a degree in political science, and his work at California Lutheran College as an English professor. Nishio is also a member of the Carmel High School Alumni Association, and he mentions his involvement with various community organizations, such as the Little Tokyo Service Center and the National Association of Japaneese Americans. He has been involved in many community service projects, such as the Virtual Manzanar Pilgrimage, and has received various awards for his contributions, including the Kenji Inouye Award. Nishio has also been involved in political campaigns, and has been a supporter of democratic values and social justice. He discusses his contributions to the Redress Movement and the Community Service Scholarships, and his work with the NCRR, which has been instrumental in helping to redress the injustices of the past. Nishio's life story is a testament to his commitment to community service and social justice, and his work continues to inspire others to engage in similar work.
The coronavirus pandemic has led to the closure of restaurants across the country. In the midst of the crisis, many are selling takeout or offering meal deliveries. The Nichi Bei Weekly interviewed chef J. Kenji López-Alt by e-mail about how his restaurant, Wursthall, in San Mateo, Calif., is staying afloat while giving back to those in need.

Nichi Bei Weekly: Can I have some background information on you? J. Kenji López-Alt: I was born in Boston and grew up in New York. My mother is Japanese and my father is American of German descent. I grew up in the Japanese middle name (which has been able to rehire some of his original staff have you hired backs for this meal delivery service? J. Kenji López-Alt: About 25 percent of our original staff. Nichi Bei Weekly: What’s the timeline of this service? When do they start? J. Kenji López-Alt: We currently operate the kitchen five days a week. Meals are generally prepped the day before and either the night before for morning deliveries, or the morning of for evening deliveries. All the meals are designed to be healthy and nourishing — lots of body-gravity vegetables and lean protein and we offer both vegans and omnivores options with every delivery. We have donated to many venues so far, including SF General, Palo Alto Medical, Kaiser South Bay, Mission Medical Clinics, Samarian House San Mateo. For more information visit: http://www.mastertable.com or call 1-858-721-9993.

Nichi Bei Weekly: How many of the meals have you served since the pandemic? J. Kenji López-Alt: To date, we have served nearly 7,000 meals.

Nichi Bei Weekly: How many of the original staff have you hired back for this meal delivery service? J. Kenji López-Alt: About 25 percent of our original staff.

Nichi Bei Weekly: What’s the timeline of this service? When do they start? J. Kenji López-Alt: We currently operate the kitchen five days a week. Meals are generally prepped the day before and either the night before for morning deliveries, or the morning of for evening deliveries. All the meals are designed to be healthy and nourishing — lots of body-gravity vegetables and lean protein and we offer both vegans and omnivores options with every delivery. We have donated to many venues so far, including SF General, Palo Alto Medical, Kaiser South Bay, Mission Medical Clinics, Samarian House San Mateo. For more information visit: http://www.mastertable.com or call 1-858-721-9993.
One of the people who enchanted the journalist and educator Guyo
Kawakami was Tajiri, who had written extensively on Japanese American public life.

Kawakami is known for his work in numerous anthologies and for his writing on the subject of Japanese American history. He was also a poet, and his work has been featured in several anthologies and publications.

Later, Kawakami told me that he had worked at the famous restaurant in San Francisco called the "Cork and Bottle" and that he had met Guyo during that time. They started corresponding regularly, and Kawakami would often visit Guyo's house and stay there. Kawakami said that Guyo was a great influence on his work and that he had learned a lot from him.

Eventually, Kawakami visited Guyo in Japan to meet his family and learn more about his background. He said that Guyo's family was very welcoming and that he was able to spend time with them and learn about their lives.

Kawakami said that Guyo had been a great inspiration to him and that he had admired his work throughout their correspondence. He also said that Guyo had been a great friend and that he had missed him dearly when he passed away.

Kawakami's relationship with Guyo continued over the years, and they would often correspond through the mail. Kawakami said that Guyo was a great writer and that he had always enjoyed his work.

Eventually, Kawakami decided to write a book about Guyo's life and work. He said that Guyo had been a great influence on him and that he wanted to share his story with others.

Kawakami's book was published in 2019, and it was well-received by critics and readers alike. He said that he was proud to have been able to share Guyo's story with the world and that he hoped that others would be inspired by his life and work.

Kawakami's experience with Guyo has had a profound impact on his life and work, and he continues to be inspired by Guyo's legacy today. He said that Guyo's life and work continue to inspire him and that he looks forward to continuing to learn from him.

Kawakami's book is available for purchase online, and he encourages anyone interested in Japanese American history or literature to read it. He said that Guyo's life and work continue to inspire him and that he hopes that others will be inspired by his story as well.

Kawakami's experience with Guyo has been a strong influence on his life and work, and he continues to be inspired by Guyo's legacy today. He said that Guyo's life and work continue to inspire him and that he looks forward to continuing to learn from him.
Fun Factor

With shutter-in-place orders in effect, people are at home, with some looking for new ways to pass the time. Take a moment to sit down and solve these puzzles. The clues and terms can be found in the previous issue of the Nichi Bei Weekly. Test your knowledge of the Japanese cultural community and culture! The result is a fun way to pass the time.

Sudoku

Solutions

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>1</th>
<th>2</th>
<th>3</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>4</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7</td>
<td>8</td>
<td>9</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

---

Spring Cleaning and Gardening

Agritainment  Blueberries
Cleaning  Clutter
Energize  Saviging
Feng Shui  Flow
Harford  Harmony
Mizuna  Nursery
Shiso  Shiso
Tanaka  Yamagami

---

Editor’s Note: The following events will be held online in light of the ongoing coronavirus pandemic.

---

Calendar

Asian Pacific American Heritage Month events

FRIDAYS, MAY 8 AND MAY 22

The Asian American and Pacific Islander Community Center of Northern California will host an online event: “Asian American Communities from Being to Becoming” webinar. On May 8, from 12:30 to 3 p.m. at Pacific Community Center of Northern California, presenters will explore topics such as community building, leadership, and the role of technology in community development.

SATURDAYS, MAY 9, 16, AND 23

The Center for Asian American Recordings and Preservation will host an online event: “Aging in Place.” On May 9, from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. at the Center for Asian American Recordings and Preservation, the event will explore the challenges and opportunities of aging in place, with a focus on how technology is being used to support older adults.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 13

The National Association of Asian American Professionals’ PRIDE group will host an online event: “Asian American Professionals’ PRIDE Pride in Action.” On May 13, from 12:30 to 3 p.m. at the National Association of Asian American Professionals, the event will feature discussions on issues facing Asian American professionals, with a focus on leadership and career development.

---

Down

1. Mizuno Some Koons is known for this practice.
2. Who funds Go Little Tokyo?
3. In the United States, many community centers are found in.
4. Japanese NFL hopeful
5. Tanihara, a variety of Japanese cabbage
6. Wish hands in Tagalog
7. Sherry Ann Hagiwara’s debut
8. A big relief
9. Japanese farming

Across

1. Itanami Some Koons is based out of this prefecture.
2. Who funds Go Little Tokyo?
3. In the United States, many community centers are found in.
4. Japanese NFL hopeful
5. Tanihara, a variety of Japanese cabbage
6. Wish hands in Tagalog
7. Sherry Ann Hagiwara’s debut
8. A big relief
9. Japanese farming

---

March 27

The Nichi Bei Weekly will release a new digital newsletter.

---

April 13

The Nichi Bei Weekly will release its first digital edition.

---

May 7

The Nichi Bei Weekly will release its second digital edition.

---

June 13

The Nichi Bei Weekly will release its third digital edition.

---

July 13

The Nichi Bei Weekly will release its fourth digital edition.

---

August 13

The Nichi Bei Weekly will release its fifth digital edition.

---

September 13

The Nichi Bei Weekly will release its sixth digital edition.

---

October 13

The Nichi Bei Weekly will release its seventh digital edition.

---

November 13

The Nichi Bei Weekly will release its eighth digital edition.

---

December 13

The Nichi Bei Weekly will release its ninth digital edition.

---

January 13

The Nichi Bei Weekly will release its tenth digital edition.

---

February 13

The Nichi Bei Weekly will release its eleventh digital edition.

---

March 13

The Nichi Bei Weekly will release its twelfth digital edition.

---

April 13

The Nichi Bei Weekly will release its thirteenth digital edition.

---

May 13

The Nichi Bei Weekly will release its fourteenth digital edition.

---

June 13

The Nichi Bei Weekly will release its fifteenth digital edition.

---

July 13

The Nichi Bei Weekly will release its sixteenth digital edition.

---

August 13

The Nichi Bei Weekly will release its seventeenth digital edition.

---

September 13

The Nichi Bei Weekly will release its eighteenth digital edition.

---

October 13

The Nichi Bei Weekly will release its nineteenth digital edition.

---

November 13

The Nichi Bei Weekly will release its twentieth digital edition.

---

December 13

Asian athletes give back during quarantine

Kairos Boost

Formerly a gymnastics team, Kairos boost recently won the 2020 Honda Sport Award for a gymnastics program, a prestigious honor that recognizes the achievements of female college athletes, according to a GoFundMe page.

The campaign by the global philanthropic organization gives female athletes the opportunity to make a difference in the lives of others.

"This year's Kairos Boost campaign is continuing to take her classes online for her molecule, cell and developmental biology major, according to her Instagram profile and posts on her Instagram account.

Yuta Watanabe

The NBA season on hiatus due to the COVID-19 pandemic, some players are working on their conditioning and doing home workouts. Yuta Watanabe did not want to lose 2020 NBA season.

He joined a gym to work on his body. Watanabe spent his entire Monday at the gym working on his body.

"It's about how he did some- thing for the team and then he thought of what he meant," said Petriello.

Watanabe plans to do a better job and to keep working on his body. The team for the upcoming summer is going to work on his body.

"It's a lot of times that we're in the middle of a game and we're not sure if we'll win or lose," said Watanabe.

The Road to Recovery

According to an online economic historian at the University of California, San Diego, the post-pandemic economy will be different. Businesses are able to implement social distancing and other measures that will allow them to reopen.

The economy has seen a great deal of employment in the Bay Area, and businesses and nonprofits in the region have received millions of dollars. Some businesses and nonprofits in the region have received millions of dollars. They're asking for help to spread awareness and create a community center.

Ultimately, San Francisco and Oakland are facing a major challenge in dealing with the economic downturn caused by the pandemic. The city and county are asking for help to keep the community center in operation.

Some businesses and nonprofits in the region have received millions of dollars. They're asking for help to spread awareness and create a community center.
数字、大好きです！
私が言っているのは、
2020年国勢調査と公的予算のこと。

私は会計士じゃありません。
でも、数字が増えていくのが大好きなんです。

アメリカで暮らす人の数を完全に、正確に知るため、10年に一度、国勢調査が行われますよね。そしてその数字が正確であればあるほど、私たちのコミュニティに予算が割り当てられるチャンスが増えるってご存知でしたか？これは学校や病院や道路に使われる毎年6,750億ドルを超える予算のことです。

私が国勢調査に回答すれば、コミュニティの問題解決に役立つでしょう。みんなが回答すれば、私たちのコミュニティをより力強いものにできます。

今すぐ
2020CENSUS.GOV/ja

広告スポンサー：アメリカ合衆国国勢調査